

Adrian Poynton

Writer

Adrian Poynton is an award winning writer of both comedy and drama. He wrote and created White Van Man - starring Will Mellor and Joel Fry - for BBC Three (later repeated on BBC One). He then successfully adapted the show for America's ABC network as Family Tools - starring JK Simmons and Leah Remini.

Adrian is also known for his award winning play A Very Naughty Boy about the working relationship of Monty Python's Graham Chapman and John Cleese which toured the UK before a month long run at London's Soho Theatre to huge critical acclaim. He has also written for Sky One's Trolled and Big Finish's Doctor Who range starring Tom Baker.

Adrian is currently developing both drama and comedy in the UK and the US.
