

Katherine Churcher

Katherine is a critically acclaimed director-of documentaries and drama.- She began her career making primetime, international films tackling difficult issues for BBC, ITV and Channel 4.- These included 'Who Killed My Dad?- The Death of Terry Lloyd' for ITV (following the daughter of a journalist as she meets the person responsible for killing her father in Iraq), 'The Police's Dirty Secret' for Channel 4 (the astonishing story of how the police spied on the family of Stephen Lawrence and women were deceived into long-term relationships, including having children, with police spies) and 'Inside the American Embassy' for Channel 4 (following Trump's ambassador to London during a critical political period).

Recently she has directed 'Aung San Suu Kyi: The Fall of an Icon' for BBC, three episodes of the latest series of 'Grantchester' for ITV/PBS and is now directing THE MARLOW MURDER CLUB for PBS.

She also has a feature in development with Bankside Films and Archface Films based on one of her documentaries.
