Represented by:

Jessica Stewart

John is a writer from County Clare, Ireland. He has written pilots for Element Pictures and Wiip/Workshop Pictures. He is currently under commission at the Abbey Theatre and was the winner of the 2025 Adopt a Playwright Award. His debut play If We Got Some More Cocaine I Could Show You How I Love You premiered in London in 2016 to critical acclaim before tours and productions in Ireland, Spain and Australia. It is published by Bloomsbury. Sink premiered at the 2019 Dublin Fringe, while Flights toured Ireland & the UK in 2020. Flights & Sink are published by Nick Hern Books. In 2020 he wrote the short video-play Your Hands featuring Nicola Coughlan for Dear Ireland at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin. John won the 2022 Phelim Donlon/ITI Bursary, the 2018 BBC Radio/Stewart Parker Drama Award, 2017 IARA award for best playwright and a Vault Festival London award, along with two Peggy Ramsay Awards. He's had stories and articles published in the Irish Times, Verbal Arts, Bare Fiction and Crannóg magazines. He was one of UCD's inaugural Creative Fellows where he occasionally teaches and mentors, and regularly teaches creative writing in Limerick Youth Service. Previous attachments include Royal Court Young Writers Programme, the Old Vic 12, the Orange Tree Writers Collective, BBC Writers Room TV Drama Writers' Programme and the Irish Theatre Institute's Six in the Attic.
