

Hunter Andrews

Writer

Hunter Andrews is a screenwriter from Manchester, currently living in London. His debut feature script WASTEMAN (Agile, Hoopsa, It's All Made Up, Lionsgate) is currently in post-production. He's currently developing several film and TV projects in the UK and US. These include the original script, AKA BILLY THE KID with Film 4 & Element Pictures; an adaptation of Geoffrey Household's ROGUE MALE with Searchlight and SunnyMarch, along with several unannounced projects.-

He's also interested in gaming and new technologies for storytelling, having worked creatively with many of the largest game publishers and studios in the world. He also developed the original story for the first-ever VR episode of BBC's, DOCTOR WHO, which was Emmy nominated.
